Sugar has sold at four cents. Hawaii is still within the low barometric market pressure.

Birle's resolutions give evidence of the pendency of the Hawaiian movement. The Birle-Advertiser citizens' movement.

Should the Vladivostokers be as slow to find the Korea as the Japanese navy is to discover the Vladivostokers there is no occasion to worry.

Adoption of the educational plan by the Christian associations ought to arouse co-operative results that recognize no such word as fail.

Hearst is getting some credit from his enemies in both parties. After having interviewed him the Chicago Record-Herald says he is a "good loser."

When the Seventh Precinct or a Republican Convention votes to adopt Birleism, the party can bid farewell to the support of respectable citizens.

Grover Cleveland's idea of American independence is a prevailing belief in equality that puts the dictator at the bottom of the heap where he belongs.

Retreat from Newchwang and a general destruction of the city is assurance that Kuropatkin has given up going to the relief of Port Arthur except by the air line.

Manager Ahrens is entitled to the gratitude of all plantation managers for convincing Japanese laborers that plantations are not to be conducted by a committee from the field.

After having been the subject of a somewhat caustic discussion in baseball circles the Rapid Transit plays the Biblical injunction of turning the other cheek in the shape of a baseball trophy.

The small circle in Honolulu who have been asking friends in the country districts to "come and help us defeat county government" get a response "We'll have county government or know the reason why."

By sending the steamer Knight Commander to the bottom, Russia's navy has saved a prize crew the misfortune of having to give up a rich capture and loaded the Russian Foreign Office with a burden that will require more attention than a perfunctory apology.

Roosevelt may be a man on horseback. This is preferable to Parker's condition. After reading the Democratic platform and Parker's gold telegram the voter is doubtful whether he is on foot or horseback and naturally bolts the whole proposition for a certain.

Since there are no American ships in prospect, Hawaii's cup of joy would be full if treated to a visit from the Vladivostok squadron. It would have to spend some money here, and the excitement would be sufficient to keep the islands up to standard pitch till the election campaign opens.

Hawaii still contains some people who would be pleased to have the franchise restricted. The consensus of opinion is that this is an impossibility. Query—What benefit does this Territory derive from an effort to put citizens before the mainland public as sadly lacking in a knowledge of the purpose of even a Democratic National Convention?

When Hawaii has enough fruit for shipment to the Coast to fill a steamer each month the small agriculturalists of the Territory will be in a position to talk traffic with the merchants. That day is not far distant if the present rate of progress is maintained and every citizen of the islands is interested in seeing that it is. The developing fruit trade is a feature of the business situation that must put a quietus on the calamity howlers.

Curtis Lauka has come as near as any man can to boxing the political compass. His worst enemies, however, could not take seriously the imputation that he has got so far at sea politically as to uphold a Republican candidate in a Democratic convention. The Colonel will do well, however, to drop the subject of cutting down Territorial representation in view of the editorial remarks of the Democratic New York World. The movement to reduce Territorial convention delegates is by no means confined to the Republican organization.

The public meeting to review the work of the mosquito campaign cannot fail to endorse what has been done and exert its influence that the war against the mosquito may continue. The recent assembly of health officers recommended that legislative action be taken in the several States and Territories to advance the anti-mosquito cause. As Honolulu has been a pioneer in this line of work that receives the cordial approval of the nation's health officers the Territory cannot do better than follow up the local effort with recognition and assistance that will give it Territorial scope.

THAT ST. LOUIS YARN.

It is unfortunate for any community when an incident like the alleged nomination of Roosevelt by a Hawaiian delegate to the National Democratic convention is taken up as a cudgel in local politics. If a people can't get bigger things than this to wrangle over and put before the voters, they must be small potatoes and few in the hill.

The obvious purpose of a story of this type is to discredit Hawaii. It makes no difference whether the Democratic delegate was a Hawaiian who spoke English in slow halting measure, the incident is shaped in the report given by the St. Louis paper in a way to make the Territory appear ridiculous. The aim was to prove Hawaii incapable of grasping the purpose of a national convention, unable to discern the dividing lines of the two great parties to the extent of being ignorant of the candidates canvassed by the contesting organizations.

There are some things in which members of a community show their good sense by being "nonpartisan." Honest citizens recognize the right to differ on political principles. When, however, a movement is made by members of a Democratic or Republican convention or partisan newspapers of either organization to misrepresent Hawaii's Territorial delegates, and thereby bring the whole or a good share of the voting population into contempt, then is the time for decent citizens of the Territory to show that there is a general spirit of local pride and loyalty prevailing which resents such unjust attacks.

The St. Louis yarn does not appeal to any thoughtful citizen as containing an element of truth. Delegates who attended the Democratic convention are well known here and our people, irrespective of party prejudice, know also that not one of them is such an ignoramus as to nominate or suggest the nomination of Roosevelt in a Democratic gathering.

There are those on the mainland who look upon this Territory as an aggregation of barbarians. This idea is just what the thoughtful citizens of the islands have long been struggling against, though they have received no assistance from Dr. Bishop's letters to the Washington Star and the well known local newspaper knock-out organ. The St. Louis story is an echo of this mainland idea that contemplates Hawaii as an aggregation of grass hut dwellers whose only thought is the price of coconuts and only amusement hula dancing.

Is there any good reason why Republicans of these islands should pick up such morsels and gloat over them because they are tacked onto a Democrat? If there is, some one should arise and explain. We doubt that he can convince.

The purpose of every decent citizen of Hawaii is to uphold the good name of the Territory and its people at all times, whether in Republican or Democratic conventions. What is to be gained by blowing on the coals shoveled into the furnace of misrepresentation by our enemies? It doesn't gain local friends for Republicans nor lessen the number of Democratic followers. Politics conducted on this plan are of the peanut variety. It injures the Territory and promotes the reputation for picking up petty affairs, haggling over them and allowing the incidents that make for general progress, unity and self-respect to pass by default. If the St. Louis speech had been made and Lauka or any other Hawaiian delegate had made it, this Territory has no business adding any frescoes.

LAUKEA'S RESPONSE TO THE ROOSEVELT CANARD

Editor Evening Bulletin:—If you will give me space, I think I can entertain your readers for awhile and at the same time show the public to what base uses a newspaper would go to besmirch anything and everything Hawaiian.

In its anxiety to discredit the Hawaiian delegation at the St. Louis convention, or rather the Hawaiian part of the delegation, the Advertiser with its usual bombastic and knocking propensities publishes a newspaper report purporting to give a description of a Hearst conference in which a Hawaiian delegate is said to have supported Roosevelt for nomination at a Democratic convention. Overcome with joy, the Advertiser proceeds to ridicule Hawaiians generally and, with countenance full of scorn, points to the man whom it conjectures is the guilty culprit. "It must be the 'protean Lauka'." It can be no other! shouts the Advertiser Knockers.

In the same issue of the Advertiser is published a report of the Democratic Central Committee meeting here, held the night previous, wherein appears a denial by myself of the truth of the newspaper report in question.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, one would think that a reasonable editor would hesitate before making an attack based solely on a newspaper canard—for that is all it is. But why need wonder in these strenuous days when the Devil's Partner is said to dwell within our very portals and safely ensconced within the inner sanctuaries of our "Morning Knockers"?

Now, Mr. Editor, it so happens that I have before me the newspaper report referred to and upon which the Advertiser bases its cowardly attack. The Advertiser, in reprinting it artfully omits that portion of the report descriptive of the speaker at the conference. It runs thus:

"He arose and the meeting gave ear to the swarthy-hued descendant of the Kanakas, 'Gentlemen,' he said, 'I came to your gathering as a representative of the Territory of Hawaii. His English was a trifle uncertain, and there was a decided accent, but still it was plain enough in its peculiar way.' Mr. Editor, does this description fit my cap? Is my articulation of the English language rendered with a 'decided accent'? Or with any 'uncertain taint'? I leave your readers to infer."

In justice to the Hawaiian delegation, in justice to the Democrats of Hawaii, yes; in the name of decency and fair play, I owe it them to make this public announcement emphatically denying the truth of the report that any member of the delegation attended any conference. It is a newspaper canard pure and simple, inspired by "Knockers" to discredit Hawaii and the Hawaiians, and done for the purpose of agitating the question of Hawaii's representative vote with the view of curtailing that vote in the nominating convention from six to two, as was done by the Republican party at the Chicago convention.

It is needless to say that this newspaper canard first appeared in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, a Republican paper, the editorials of which prior to the opening of the convention were urging the curtailment of Territorial votes at the nominating convention. But the Republicans counted without their host, for the question as to Hawaii's full vote was never mooted in or out of convention; neither was there any intention on the part of the Democratic party to deprive the people of Hawaii of their full representation.

This is what the Hawaiian delegation at St. Louis has to offer to the voters of Hawaii and not the reduced representation which our Republican friends will find it hard to explain. "Equal rights and special privileges to none" is one of the basic principles of Democracy, which in the case of Hawaii has been fully exemplified.

I quote from The Hon. Champ Clark's great speech these memorable words: "The time has not arrived—I pray, Almighty God that it will never arrive—when the American people will accept the arrogant dictum of Louis XIV, if repeated by an American—I am the State."

These are the sentiments I stand for and which the American people will uphold by their votes at the coming Presidential election; not for the "Gentleman in Spurs"—Roosevelt. C. P. LAUKEA.

FLINGS GRAVE CHARGE

"Was Eliza's child born during the trial?"

"Yes, I think so."

"When did Eliza tell you about Kentwell?"

"A few days, I think it was, after the baby was born."

"But she told you all this before the trial was over?"

"Yes, she did."

Miss Christian testified that Eliza was by no means a stupid girl; she said, in fact, that she had found her very bright. She had known her for nine years. Six months before the marriage to Albert Christian she had overheard a conversation between her brother, Albert, and Eliza's father—the part of a conversation in which Albert had asked the old gentleman for Eliza's hand in marriage and Mr. Holt had given his consent, saying:

"I would rather see Eliza married to Christian than to a Chinaman. Eliza has been disgraced."

Miss Christian heard nothing more of the marriage until the night of the wedding. Then she was somewhat surprised, she said, because she had thought they were merely fooling in the matter.

Witness testified that once Eliza had told her that she loved Christian. During cross-examination the following occurred:

At 11:50 o'clock Milverton announced that the defence's case was complete. He had no more witnesses to call.

Eliza, by the way, has not been put in the witness box. Today she sat in the rear of the court room with her father, apparently reading from a magazine.

When asked what Eliza had ever read, Miss Christian testified that she had seen the girl reading "Alice's Visit to the Hawaiian Islands."

Bitting announced that he wished to call Sister Albertina to the stand in rebuttal.

Judge Gear continued the case until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The end is in sight.

The Honolulu Winter League held a meeting last night and completed its organization. The teams in the League are the Aalas, Pacific, Makiki, Honolulu Iron Works, and Punahou. Games will be played on Sunday and begin the first Sunday in August, ending the second Sunday in November.

Gus Danguisse, a resident of Portland, Ore., was brought before Justice Hoyne of the municipal court charged with ill treating his wife. The evidence showed that he had choked the woman brutally. The court directed Officer Goetz, an immensely powerful man, to choke the prisoner in order that he might have practical knowledge of how his wife suffered. The officer obeyed with a will, holding the wife-beater until the brutal fellow became limp. Then Justice Hoyne sentenced him to thirty days in jail.

"Did you not say that Eliza was no good—that she was no better than an animal?"

"Why I never said such a thing! I deny that!"

"Did you not say that Eliza was of no use?"

"I did not! Eliza was very willing and helpful round the house. She could wash, sew, and do general housework. My sister and I taught her a great deal. It only took a couple of weeks for her to learn things. She knew how to mend her clothes when she married my brother. She took care of her husband's clothes."

"Patch them?"

"No, they never needed patching."

"Darn them?"

"Yes, darn them!"

"And other work that she did?"

"Yes, crochet."

Miss Christian testified that Eliza had been able to write ever since she left school. She swore to having seen the girl writing on a piece of her note paper which was decorated with a bunch of forget-me-nots. This writing was introduced in evidence. Bitting attempted to shake the witness' testimony in this regard. Following are extracts from the writings of Eliza:

"Why is an infant like a diamond?"

"It is a clear little thing."

"When is a cat like a tea pot?"

"When you're tea's in it."

"What animals are always seen at funerals?"—Black Kicks."

Tax Assessor Holt took the stand for the defense and testified that Eliza had generally conducted herself as a bright

STONE THROWING TABU

CHINESE TRIES NOVEL
WAY TO COLLECT DEBT

The Police Court held a very lengthy session today in spite of the fact that there were only seventeen cases on the calendar. The court did not adjourn before 12:30 p. m. It sits again this afternoon.

One of the cases which consumed a long time was that of Turatoma, a Japanese, charged with assault and battery on Ah Hing, a 9-year-old Chinese boy. Turatoma is in charge of John Baker's premises in Kalihi. He claims that boys repeatedly broke into the garden to steal fruit. He had warned them to keep away but they would not keep out. He threw a stone on the fence to scare the boys away. The stone ricocheted from the fence and hit Ah Hing. The prosecution showed that Ah Hing was on the road when he was hit. The boy had a bad wound about an inch below the eye. Judge Rawlins gave the defendant a lecture and fined him $10 and costs.

Chun Lo Joe, a Chinese charged under three charges with larceny in the second degree, put up a unique defense. He was alleged to have stolen a revolver, a watch and $22.50 in cash from a vegetable peddler named Yau Shin. Chin Lo Joe admitted that he had broken into the complainant's house at 2 o'clock in the morning and that he had taken the stuff. He said in defense that Yau Shin owed him $6.50 and that he had taken the stuff to secure his debt. He intended to return his booty to its owner.

The employers of the defendant, Mr. Taylor and his wife, gave him fine credentials as to his honesty.

Attorney Hogan, who appeared for the defendant, claimed that Chun Lo Joe had probably, in ignorance of the law of the land, thought that he could act as a writ of attachment and had acted accordingly.

Judge Rawlins very strongly disapproved of the defendant's novel way of collecting his debts and told him so. Chun Lo Joe was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment on the first charge. The two other cases against him were nolle pro'd.

Kalos, a small Hawaiian boy charged with larceny in the second degree, had his case continued until tomorrow. He is alleged to have stolen a purse and $5 from Otto Winkler.

Murata, a Japanese, was charged with selling liquor without a license. He was arrested at Motiili a few days ago for selling a demijohn of wine. The defendant's attorney, S. F. Chillingworth, put up a very strong defense. The court reserved its decision in the case.

Jack Weday, the pugilist, was charged with assault and battery on Edith Sole, a Porto Rican girl. Weday requested a continuance of his case until tomorrow, which was granted.

The cases of Pang Lum, charged with assault and battery on Mook Kim, David Kallihwa, charged with adultery; J. Haulani, charged with violating the carriage regulations, and of Ben Kahalon, charged with assault and battery on J. Kalawe, were all nolle pro'd.

The cases of Henry Romero, charged with assault and battery, and of Mokapu, charged with assault with a weapon, were held over until this afternoon.

E. A. Fraser and Mrs. Fraser return to Mahukona today.

HONOLULU ELKS

with flowers in the Elk colors under the direction of Mrs. Lake, and American flags draped the walls.

When the dinner was well under way Frank E. Thompson took charge of affairs as toastmaster and the three hours that followed were not allowed to drag. The deluge of after-dinner oratory and song flowed incessant and strong to the song flowed incessant and strong to the finish. A trio of well trained voices, Brothers Howland, Thompson and Livingston, led the musical van.

The toasts proposed and those who responded were as follows:

"Hilo Lodge No. 759," E. E. Richards; "Honolulu Lodge No. 616," J. H. Fisher; "The President," Lorrin Andrews; "The Territorial Officers," Guy Livingston; "The Federal Officers," L. T. Kenake; "The Single Elk," Emil Peters; "The Ladies," H. Wingate Lake; "The Press," L. W. Haworth; "The Superintendent of Public Works," C. S. Holloway; "The Democratic Party," E. M. Watson; "The Absent Ladies," Prosser; "Eleven O'Clock," H. D. Couzens; "Gear," Hon. Geo. D. Gear; "County Government," Harry Murray; "The Governor of Hawaii," A. J. C. Atkinson.

After the dinner had been cleared away, the party enjoyed a social session. Emil Peters presiding at the piano. It was during these proceedings that D. D. G. E. R., C. B. Cooper gave effective imitation of how Uncle Joe Cannon preserved order at the Chicago convention. The imitation was as effective with Elks as the original was with Republican delegations.

One of the impressive incidents of the evening was the reference by Dr. Cooper to the late Medo T. Detweiler and John C. Reese, two members of the Grand Lodge of Elks who recently died. A silent toast to their memory was drunk.

Guy Livingston, in an inimitable curate talk showed how the Government of Hawaii was in the hands of the Elks. In the room he was able to recognize the Governor, the Superintendent of Public Works, the Deputy Superintendent of Public Works, the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, the Auditor, Judge Gear, Supervisor Johnson and himself, all Elks and all supporting the burdens of state as slaves of the people.

The guest of the evening, Mr. Richards, also a Territorial official, promised to come to Honolulu next time with a body guard.

Those at the dinner were A. L. C. Atkinson, J. H. Fisher, C. B. Cooper, E. E. Richards, Frank E. Thompson, Gilson Bell, J. H. Howland, H. Wingate Lake, Guy Livingston, M. F. Prosser, Emil Peters, Lorrin Andrews, L. M. Whitehouse, Gus Murphy, Captain Johnson, H. D. Couzens, Geo. Martin, E. M. Watson, Judge Geo. D. Gear, L. W. Haworth, C. S. Holloway, F. E. Richardson, L. T. Kenake, Henry Roth, Harry Murray.

COPPER KING'S WINE BILL

Helena, Mont., July 2.—F. Augustus Heinze may yet have to settle the disputed account with Sam Morin, the proprietor of a Butte restaurant and gambling house, who some time ago sued the copper mine operator to recover a balance of $12,000 alleged to be due on account for the supper and entertainments at dinners times of Mr. Heinze and his friends.

The suit was originally brought in Judge Harney's court at Butte, when a judgment was rendered in favor of Heinze because of the fact that the plaintiff had failed to submit an itemized statement of the account. In an opinion of Chief Justice Brantley today, the decision of the lower court was reversed and the case remanded for a new trial.

The original banquet account of Mr. Heinze during a campaign of 1900 was $20,000, but $8,000 was paid by Heinze at the time the parties to the suit had an accounting.
